DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. This action is responsive to an Amendment filed 12/15/2006. Claims 15-30 are pending. Claims 15, 19, 23, and 27 are amended. Claims 1-14 are canceled.

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments regarding claims 15, 19, 23, and 27, filed 12/15/2006, have been fully considered, but they are not persuasive.

Regarding claims 15, 19, 23, and 27, the applicant argues that Daniels fails to disclose displaying programs with respective selection buttons and transmitting record reservation data to the remote device of the user based on the user selections of the buttons in the program table. The examiner respectfully disagrees. As noted in the Office Action mailed 8/28/2006, Daniels discloses a system in which a user is provided access to a computer network source of program information and data instructions via an Internet modem connection. The user selects a television program to record and receives data instructions from the computer network source depending on the selected television program. A recording apparatus is controlled to record the selected television program depending on the received and stored instructions (p. 3, paragraphs 24, 25 & p. 13, paragraphs 130, 131, 133-136; & p. 14, paragraphs 140-143). Daniels further discloses a navigable Web page displaying program information (p. 14, paragraphs 144, 145). When a user selects the program, for example, "Guligan's Island," a column pops up with a Record option (p. 14, paragraph 146; & p. 15, paragraphs 150, 151). This meets the limitation of “displaying programs with respective selection buttons,” as currently claimed. Daniels still further discloses that, upon choosing a program to record, VCR control information is received from the network, which includes data such as time, channel, duration, repeat, date, etc. necessary to specify the program that has been selected to be recorded. The VCR control information is then stored. A system clock provided in the recording apparatus is used in conjunction with the stored control information to determine when to begin recording (p. 13, paragraph 131 & Fig. 7). As such, the examiner further maintains that Daniels meets the limitation of transmitting “record reservation data to the remote device of the user,” as currently claimed.

Art Unit: 2623

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 15, 16, 19, 20, 23, 24, 27, 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Daniels.

Referring to claims 15, 16, 19, 20, 23, 24, 27, and 28, Daniels discloses an information processing apparatus/method, comprising a server configured to store a program table displaying programs with respective selection buttons, the server further configured to allow a user to select programs on the program table by selecting one of the respective selection buttons on the program table corresponding to a respective program, the user accessing the server from a remote device through a network, and the server further configured to transmit record reservation data to the remote device of the user based on the user selections of the buttons in the program table, the transmitted record reservation data for controlling the recording of a picture at the user remote device, and including data for specifying a channel, data indicating the date and time for starting the recording, and data (duration data) indicating the date and time for terminating the recording to a picture recording apparatus (p. 3, paragraphs 24, 25; p. 13, paragraphs 130, 131, 133-136; p. 14, paragraphs 140-146; p. 15, paragraphs 150, 151; p. 17, paragraphs 165, 168; & Figs. 7-11, 15-19, 23-26, 36, 37).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 17, 18, 21, 22, 25, 26, 29, 30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Daniels in view of vCalendar Specification, v0.4.

Referring to claims 17, 21, 25, and 29, Daniels discloses the information processing apparatus/method according to claims 15, 19, 23, and 27, respectively. Daniels also discloses that a calendar scheduling application is operated depending on VCR control information (p. 13, paragraph 136). Daniels further discloses that VCR control information can be updated via email (p. 14, paragraph 140). Daniels does not disclose that the transmitted data is data of a v-calendar system. vCalendar specification, v0.4 discloses the use of the vCalendar format in point-to-point communication (p. 1, paragraph 4), where vCalendar data streams are created with a vCalendar Writer and are read with a vCalendar reader (p. 1, paragraph 6). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time that the invention was made to modify Daniels to include the use of a vCalendar format, such as that taught by vCalendar Specification, v0.4 in order to collect and communicate PDI information across e-mail (p. 1, paragraph 2).

Referring to claims 18, 22, 26, and 30, the combination of Daniels and vCalendar specification, v0.4 teach the information processing apparatus according to claims 15, 19, 23, and 27, respectively, wherein the transmitted data comprises text data including the information specifying the date and time of starting the recording, the recording start date and time specifying information being stated next to the information indicating the start of the recording reservation data "BEGIN:VCALENDAR" (vCalendar Specification v0.4 p. 5, 2.2.1), "DTSTART:" (vCalendar Specification v0.4 p. 6, 2.1.2), the information specifying the date and time of end of recording, the recording end date and time specifying information being stated next to "DTEND:" (vCalendar Specification v0.4 p. 23, paragraph 2.3.11), the information specifying a channel for recording, the channel specifying information being stated next to "LOCATION:" (vCalendar Specification v0.4 p. 24, 2.3.15), the name of a program for recording, recorded next to "DESCRIPTION:" (vCalendar Specification v0.4 p. 6, 2.1.3), and the information "END:VCALENDAR" (vCalendar Specification v0.4 p. 5, 2.2.1) indicating the end of the recording reservation data.

Conclusion

Art Unit: 2623

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).
